

NEARBY RACE TRACK TO OFFER BEST SPORT

By J. W. MARCHBANK

With the completion of the modernization of the Tanforan plant, everything is in readiness for the opening of the spring season of racing on Saturday of next week (April 20). When I brought the sport back at Tanforan five years ago I had in mind changes that would transform the historic track into the most beautiful and most comfortable of racing headquarters. Now the contemplated changes have been made and I must say I feel a pardonable pride in the achievement.

Racing is in a state of flux and ideas that might have been applicable to conditions a generation ago are no longer of any use. The game must be looked at from the most liberal point of view and built up accordingly. One desideratum of timely appeal is holding of periods of the sport of comparatively short duration. Long, drawn-out sessions are as extinct as the dodo.

Another thought. On account of the remarkably mild weather conditions in the San Francisco bay region racing of class can be put on at any season. Take the late spring and summer, for example, when there is a steady incoming of visitors to the district in which we live. Those men and women are looking for a cooler climate than that of their home districts. San Francisco offers the ideal escape from the heat. No need to mention the autumn days here; they are world famous and people come from every part of the globe to enjoy them.

With encouragement of the rearing of thoroughbreds in the West able to hold their own anywhere and the coming of men from the East with good ones the pastime is bound to increase at a fast pace in popularity in the next few years. That is, if the helmsmen of the sport do not make too many mistakes, such as allowing dividend-made promoters to get control. "Sport for sport's sake" should be our slogan day by day. Then we'll win out in a big way.

BAND TO RENDER CONCERT TO HELP FIREMENS FUND

Fine Program Is Arranged
For Entertainment Given
To Assist Widows
And Orphans

At the meeting of the general committee held this Wednesday evening in Station No. 2 quarters, all the different committees reported progress. Chief Chesney reported that he had arranged with Mr. Cook, president and manager of the Daly City Band and the band will be ready to render the first number at 7:45 o'clock and judging from numbers that have been arranged, the audience is going to hear some good music.

The program committee announces that if there is any merchant, citizen or organization that has not been solicited for an ad will get in touch with any member of the department. There is still time to get these advertisements in before turning the program over to the printer.

If any citizen wishes to help us make a success of this affair they can do so by helping us to advertise by placing one of our windshield stickers on their machine. They can be procured from any member of the department.

One half of a five dollar bill was found on a Daly City street and was turned over to the editor of the Daly City Record. He has turned it over to the department with the understanding that if anybody finding the other half bring the same to the entertainment and any arrangements that are made to divide the money his share will be returned into our fund. Look around, get the other part of the bill and bring it to the Jefferson Union High School Auditorium on Saturday evening, April 27.

DALY CITY BAND TO GIVE CONCERT

PEDESTRIAN IS KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Soldier Runs Down Ranch
Hand While Crossing
Street Intersection

Private Ross Wood, soldier at the San Francisco Presidio reported to local police, his auto struck and killed an unidentified man at School and Mission streets at 1:20 o'clock Sunday morning.

Wood was accompanied by Sergeant Juel V. Huber of the medical department of Letterman Hospital. The man, according to Wood, was crossing Mission street at the time.

The victim was pronounced dead by Dr. Drees on arrival at the Villa Sanitarium.

The remains were removed to W. C. Lasswell & Co. undertaking establishment, and a search for relatives or friends of the deceased was instituted.

The man was later identified as Edward Zarunate, 60, employed on the Arata ranch in Colma, by Del Sarto, of Colma.

Zarunate had no known relatives. He had been employed on the Arata ranch for the past two months.

Private Wood was released on his own recognizance by Deputy Coroner Luella D. Pepper, pending an inquest.

ADVOCATES FOR SANE PURSES IN RACING SPORT

Breeding of Thoroughbreds
In California Should Be Given Encouragement

The Daily Racing Form, a highly conservative publication, has come out unqualifiedly in favor of a sane program for the sport in California. Swollen purses that eventually might ruin racing have no place in the philosophy of the editors of the "Form." After commentedly adversely on the report of $125,000 purses, the widely read paper offers a constructive idea, as follows:

"It would be infinitely better for the health of the turf if there was no race of greater value than $25,000 added, and no overnight purse of lesser value than $1000 added. Such a top and bottom would make possible the best of racing, and the earning opportunities of thoroughbreds of every quality would be such that there would be a decided beneficial effect on the thoroughbred market."

Showing a deep insight into the intricacies of the pastime, attention is called to the undoubted fact that a $125,000 race is purely a commercial gesture and such commercialism among track owners invites commercialism among those who race their horses.

In order to raise the value of overnight events there must be a concerted movement by all sportsmen to encourage the breeding of a high type of thoroughbred in the state. The only way to have the best sport in the world is to rear runners of class on the home farms to meet those shipped here from other states. In order for the breeders to make both ends meet purses must be as large as possible.

A trainer of a big string at Bay Meadows made a pertinent remark today as to factors in encouraging breeding in California. After racing at all the tracks in the West he has come to the conclusion that the managements of the others should follow the example of Tanforan in giving good prizes for California-breds in worth while features. He said:

"Mr. Marchbank is the only man here in the West who is sufficiently broad-visioned to offer purses of more than ordinary amount for horses bred at our own nurseries. Every track should have California-bred events above the common and garden variety of overnight affair."

ROD AND GUN CLUB TO VISIT VALLEJO

Anglers Expect Big Catch
While Guests Of Club
In Nearby Territory

The Daly City Rod and Gun Club held its regular meeting in Eagles Hall on Friday evening of last week.

Nick Durenzo was presented with a fishing rod as first prize for the largest striped bass caught, which was weighed in at 22 pounds; and Frank Kingswood, with a 12 pounder, got second prize.

Arrangements were completed and committees appointed for a fishing trip by the club over the weekend of May 10 and 11, when they will go to Vallejo, where they will be housed in the Pacific Rod and Gun Club ark, which has been turned over to the Daly City club for that occasion.

Thirty members signed up for the trip.

SPRING MEETING AT REVAMPED PLANT TO START

Nearby Racing Course Will Be In Full Operation
In Another Week

In only a few days racing will be on at Tanforan. The spring meeting begins one week from tomorrow. In other seasons the beginning has come on an earlier day of the week, but J. W. Marchbank, directing owner, has decided to get things going on a Saturday at this session for a change.

With the new racing strip available for galloping horsemen have been shipping strings to the track from farms in counties in the bay section. In a day or two a big exodus will be on the way from Bay Meadows. Some owners will ship by railroad for the remarkably short run of ten miles from one course to the other. Vanning will also be the order of the day.

Racing was restored to California at Tanforan in the spring of 1930 with a twelve day period of the sport. Since that pioneer meeting there has been one or more sessions each year at the popular plant at nearby San Bruno. Fans have become accustomed to making the short journey to the track and it is no exaggeration to say the Tanforan following is of as great proportions as that of any racing headquarters in the county.

The remodeled grandstand, enlarged clubhouse, the ample lawn space in front of both structures, and the modernized racing strip have won admiration from the hundreds of the "faithful" that trek to the track every little while to watch the progress of the transformation of the home course into one of the best anywhere.

WOMAN STRUCK DOWN BY AUTO

Mrs. A. Evenson of Wilson street was knocked down by an automobile driven by Ernest McIntosh, of Monta Vista, Colorado, about 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon of this week.

George Wheeler and Arthur Bodien, who were near the scene of the accident, picked up the injured woman, and took her to the Villa Sanitarium for treatment.

McIntosh was backing his car from the curb in front of Milo's Meat Market when he struck the victim.

Mrs. Evenson was returned to her home by her son, Arthur Evenson, and Officer James Reardon later in the day.

McIntosh was ordered to report to the police department Tuesday morning of this week pending the seriousness of the victim's injuries.

HOBBY EXHIBIT IS TO BE POSTPONED

Due to unavoidable circumstances, the elaborate hobby exhibition that was to be put on display for Public School Week, at the Jefferson Union High School, has been postponed indefinitely. The exact date for the exhibition has not been announced, but it will probably take place shortly after the Easter vacation.

According to Miss Gibbins, the display will be a wonderful success because of the many fields of hobbies that will be covered. The exhibition will include eight different divisions, which will be represented by model airplanes, boats, radios, science displays and various collections.

Miss Gibbins regrets that such a thing was necessary and states that the students have shown fine spirit in co-operating with her by bringing samples of their hobbies.

SOLONS GIVE BOOST TO GREAT HIGHWAY

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work
Every little advance in the consummation of the construction plans for the Alaska Highway is heartening and it was with great pleasure I read of the salutary action of the Legislature of British Columbia in its final session in putting itself on record in favor of the 2200 mile road project. The burden of the resolution by the important body is that the province is ready to facilitate construction of the artery if and when other governments submit proposals. Which is as it should be.

Members of the Legislature urged every effort be made to have the highway built on account of the vast resources to be opened up in the way of minerals, agricultural products, timber, coal, game and fish. Emphasis was placed on the circumstance that the construction of the highway would lead to developing many industries, including sawmills, which could be operated all the year round.

The sponsor of the resolution painted a glowing verbal picture of the possibilities of the enormous increase in tourist travel, particularly in view of the big game attractions of the northern section of British Columbia.

Good news has come out of Canada to the effect that the gold bullion tax has been removed effective from May 31 this year. The tax is 25 per cent of the difference between the old price of $20.67 an ounce and the present price of $35 an ounce, amounting roughly to $3.50 an ounce.

As pointed out by a number of experts, the removal of the tax permits a mining corporation to handle marginal ores, which have largely been abandoned since the levying of the tax. It is expected the change will restore to a marked extent the flow of capital from the United States to Canada.

While the action by the Dominion Government only affects directly a few corporations in British Columbia its indirect effect will be of incalculable benefit in attracting capital from this country.

From all indications the season promises to be a record one for gold production in the Arctic Circle. In the Alaska Weekly we read that Canada and the Kobuk are already assured of increased operations, while the Immachuk field may again come into its own after virtually two years of idleness. The opening of actual dredging operations by the Arctic Circle Exploration Company at Candle will mark the introduction of the first steel pontoon hull to Alaska. The company has let two contracts for sinking prospect holes and has three drills on the ground.

In discussion of the possibility of Alaska having statehood, Hearst's New York American recently said:

"Alaska will be prepared for membership in the Union of States if the colonization plan of the Department of the Interior succeeds. By May it is expected 200 families of farmers will be transported from the Northwest to the fertile Mantanuska Valley, near Anchorage, and subsidized with a grubstake in the form of $2500 Federal credit for each family. It is understood that Alaska should have a population of 200,000 before it is granted statehood. Now the total population, including natives, is about 60,000.

"Farmers accustomed to the severe winters in Minnesota and other northern states should be competent to cope with Alaskan conditions. They will find the winters longer, but the cold will be no more intense, and the longer days of summer will compensate and speed crops.

"Conditions in the more habitable parts of Alaska are similar to those of Sweden, and the people of Sweden succeed in dairying and agriculture. Sweden is eminently a 'successful' country, and Alaska, through the industry of its people, and the advantages of virgin land, should likewise become a successful state."

PATRONS TO SEE MUSICAL COMEDY AND NEW DANCES

Most Pretentious Spectacle
Yet Seen In Local Show
Opens Next Week

"Sweet Adeline," Warner Bros. new musical spectacle and said to be the most pretentious of all their gigantic specials, opens at the Daly City Theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 11, 12 and 13 with Irene Dunne, famous stage and screen singing star in the title role.

The picture is taken from the sensational Broadway hit by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II and is crammed with hilarious comedy, delightful romance and stirring drama in addition to its gigantic specialty numbers.

Unique dancing numbers are staged by Bobby Connolly on novel and mammoth sets with scores of Hollywood's most beautiful girls taking part.

Five of these songs are sung by Irene Dunne alone. She sings two others with Phil Regan, the singing cop of radio fame who also sings one song solo. Dorothy Dare, Broadway musical comedy star, sings a popular ballad while Hugh Herbert and Nydia Westman will be heard in a comedy duet.

Four of the film colony's most talented comedians are said to give the picture a hilarious comedy touch that is unequalled. They include Hugh Herbert, Nydia Westman, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorn. Winfred Shaw also has an important part.

GAME FOR SUNDAY ON HOME DIAMOND

Same Two Teams Whose Game Was Postponed
Last Week Will Play

The game which was postponed on last Sunday on account of rain between the Daly City Tanforan baseball team and the Virden Campfires, winners of the Recreation AA League, will be played by the two clubs at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Jefferson Union High School diamond.

Two excellent baseball teams in action, so what more could be asked for an enjoyable afternoon!

The home team has been playing bangup ball and it is hoped a large crowd of spectators will be on hand to root for them.

RECREATION CLUB REGULAR SESSION

The regular meeting of the Daly City Recreation and Improvement Club was held on Tuesday evening of this week in the City Hall. Announcement was made that the Daly City Council had passed a resolution as the first legal step for calling a bond election for the various projects as proposed by this club.

As no definite plans had been received from the Planning Commission regarding the approximate cost of each project, or from the Daly estate in regard to the Daly City library, it was decided to take no definite action until Tuesday evening, April 23.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

(By Chief A. P. Chesney)

The matter of electrical wiring and installation is a very grave problem in Daly City. A great many of the older houses were wired before the appointment of an inspector by the city, although the P. G. & E. did have some rules of their own before they would connect a house with their lines.

We cannot say too much against amateur wiring in this regard, as there is a lot more to be known than just how to nail up a couple of wires. One of these dangers is the overloading of a circuit. In former days it was merely a light in each room and as a general rule one circuit was sufficient. Times have changed with the advent of toasters, percolators, washing machines, iron boards, floor lamps, etc. Anybody not understanding how much of a load could be put on one circuit is laying up trouble for themselves by burning up any electrical appliances they may have on the overloaded line.

SCOUT MERIT BADGE EXPOSITION

The Scouting Merit Badge Exposition held in San Francisco Exposition Auditorium, last week, was a success. Daly City Boy Scout Troops participated Friday evening. Lord Baden Powell, Chief Scout of the World, from London, England, awarded Eagle badges to 83 scouts. Two boys from Daly City Troop No. 148 were among the 83—James Utman and Jack Lewis, who are the first two Scouts to receive the Eagle badges in our city.

During the exposition approximately 45,000 people attended. Daly City Troop No. 148 was awarded first prize in Division 1, Class B, for insect life—all insects gathered from the Daly City hills. It was an added hour when special mention above all the exhibits was given to Troop 148's insect life, along with camping, exhibited by Troop 38, Excelsior District.

The scouts who mounted and identified fifty insects were Jack Cosbie, Harry Grantham, Paul Tolovi and Peter Tolovi.

Troop 149, sponsored by Cypress Lawn Cemetery, exhibited landscape gardening and won first prize in Division 2, Class A.

ENTERTAINS PAST PRESIDENTS CLUB

Mrs. Frederika Volkman was hostess to the members of the Past Presidents Club of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., at her home in Colma, on Monday evening of this week. After an enjoyable sociable meeting, a delicious repast was served at a prettily decorated table.

Those in attendance included: Mesdames Mary May, Frieda Schade, Hattie Kelly, Alice Anderson, Ethel Cotal, Anne Biggio, Bertha Grady, Christine Hume, Catherine Wight, Rena Mathias, Camille Benassini, Irene Moresco, Florence Hopman, Alice Oldham and Frederika Volkman.

A special Palm Sunday service will also be observed in the evening at 7:45 o'clock.

JEFFERSON HIGH BEATS PALO ALTO

Heavy Hitting Game Won By Home Players By One Sided Score

The Jefferson High School baseball nine played Palo Alto on Tuesday of this week on the home diamond. This was the fourth league game Jefferson has played, and they came out with the fourth win. The Indians brought about the big score by playing heads-up ball.

In the first inning three outs were chalked up on the Palo Alto side of the score board. For Jefferson, the second man at bat, Pfeiffer, smacked the ball for a home run, which was the only tally for Jefferson in this inning.

In the second inning Louis Nannini bunted and beat the throw to first. Roy Burns followed this up with a single, and Nannini stole third. Nannini scored on George Ragghianti's single. Paul Ragghianti then got a hit, which scored Burns. Paul came home on Bob Christian's single. Three runs were scored in this inning and the count stood at 4 to nothing.

Nothing worth mentioning happened in the fourth inning, with the possible exception of Bill Strassburger's two base hit.

In the fifth George Ragghianti smacked a double to center and then brother Paul followed with another two bagger, which brought George home. Bob Christian then hit for a single and Paul stole third. Owens brought Paul home with a bunt, and Christian scored on Elder's hit to right field. Owens came home on Strassburger's hit. Four runs were scored by the Indians in this inning, which brought the count up to 8-0.

In the sixth inning Burns hit for a single into left field, followed by George Ragghianti's walk. Christian followed this up with a single and the bases were loaded. Owens then bunted, scoring Christian on a hit and run play. Elder hit and scored both Peterson, who had substituted for George Ragghianti, and Christian. There was no more scoring and the final score was 11-0.

Every Jefferson player got at least one hit. The scoring was done at opportune times throughout the game.

Motorists may find it difficult to believe—but undue looseness in the body bolts will permit the body to shift sufficiently to cause misalignment of the steering post and the bracket which brings it through the dash.

THE HOME TEAM'S BASEBALL PUNCH

Telling Some Intimate Facts With Reference To Our Home Town Players

(By Al Gould)

One could never witness a more disappointed team of baseball players, than the Daly City Tanforan nine, when Manager Martin informed them that there was to be no game last Sunday on account of the rain. They wanted to play this game with the Virden Campfire team the worst way, so that they could convince the fans beyond any reasonable doubt that they are "at tops" right now, and intend to stay right up there.

The Daly City Tanforan nine will be an entirely different club this season than it was in the Recreation Double A Winter League.

Their 5 to 3 victory over the strong Boldeman Chocolate nine in their opening game, coupled with the win from the U. S. Marines at Mare Island in their second encounter, by the lop-sided score of 15 to 4, should be just the tonic needed to get the boys going in their true stride.

The boys owe a lot to Matty Sullivan for the two great games he has pitched. This right hander had everything in the pitching way and he backed it with a great heart. He never let up for a minute, for his opposition were out there battling all the way and right on edge to break through the slightest opportunity.

That is the kind of ball clubs the Boldeman Chocolates and U. S. Marines are, and defeating that kind of ball clubs was a splendid achievement for Sullivan. Holding Boldeman Chocolate to nine scattered hits and the U. S. Marines to eight bingles was a wonderful feat.

Matty had his troublesome moments, of course. Any pitcher will have those when battling such fine teams as these, but in every pinch his support took care of him. The boys back of Matty played with the spirit that will carry any team to championship laurels.

A pretty important player is the pitcher, as we all know, but he might not have been so successful as he was had it not been for his catcher. The position of catcher is an important one, because the catcher, more than any player on the field, can see and know what is going on all of the time. There are times when he becomes a very substantial balance wheel, and he never fails when called upon to steady his team-mates.

In George Kondeff, we find a boy who uses his "thinking cap" at the right moment. This lad has every qualification to become a great catcher, speed, stamina, and a good arm. In the two games played to date, he has faced the opposing pitchers ten times, and has connected for three singles, being walked five times, and scored five runs.

Pete Dimmen has recovered wonderfully for a player who got away to such a poor start when he first came to Daly City. Batting at a .432 clip and fielding for .973 throughout the Winter League, gives this young man great prospects of becoming one of the leading first sackers in the semi-pro ranks.

Ray De Camp has proved to everybody that he is a game second baseman, especially in the Boldeman Chocolate game when he refused to give up on Devensen's low fly to short right center, of which he made such a sensational catch. It also was Ray who singled in the ninth to send home the winning runs in the Boldeman game. All of his three hits, a circuit clout and two singles have helped in the making of runs, and runs are what count.

At short, Johnny Vasques has been truly remarkable. He has put up two of the finest exhibitions I ever saw at this position. In the Mare Island game, this lad was the pivot man for one of the fastest double plays I have witnessed for many years. This boy's three hits also helped the making of runs. His home run in the first inning at Mare Island was the cause of Wells going to the showers.

Bill Kirby, the hot corner lad needs no introduction to the fans of the great pastime. A player who rarely misses a foul fly along the third base line; who dashes in and fields a bunt with unbelievable speed; and who is both swift and accurate on the long throw across the diamond to first base. During the Winter League, Bill hit the pill at a .379 clip, and in the first two games of this season, he has connected for six bingles in eleven trips to the plate.

Perfect understanding exists between the members of the infield. At second base, Johnny and Ray are never in doubt as to who is to cover the bag. At first and third, Matty and the boys agree as to who is to field the bunt and who is to cover the sack. A spirit of understanding has been developed by this harmonious infield.

Harry Maloney's fielding ability is almost uncanny. He judges fly-balls by the sound. Most outfielders do that, but few of them have developed the art to as fine a point as Maloney. He gauges both distance and direction by the sound of the crack, and he has developed the ability to catch long flies over his shoulders while on the dead run. As a batter, Harry at all times comes through with timely hits when most needed.

Joe Albrecht knows how to cover his territory in the outfield as well as any of them. He is apt as any of the fly hawks in the game, but at the present is in a batting slump, which makes his value unknown to the fans. Connecting for a home run at Mare

SPRING PRACTICE SOON TO START

Spring football practice will get under way the first Monday after Easter vacation, under the supervision of Harry Prongos and Stoddard Bright. Inasmuch as Coach Briggs is busy with baseball after school, Harry and Stoddard will supervise the work until the coach is able to work with the football squad.

All those who are willing to make the football squad are urged to go out to the field on Monday.

Tip For Campers

Motorists driving to Death Valley with their own camping equipment are cautioned that the Valley is woodless and firewood is not available. Campers should take oil stoves or make other arrangements.

Island, improved batting strength can be expected.

Frankie De Valle, the new recruit to the outfield, came to Daly City with the best of recommendations. At the present writing the company looks rather fast for this youngster. But we must give him a chance to become acquainted with his new surroundings. A powerful hitting outfield must be developed before the start of the Peninsula League on May 5.

The old "war horse" Sammy Hawley is still going strong for his forty-six years of youthfulness. In the game at Mare Island when the pitching ace, Matty Sullivan, split his finger and had to retire from the game, it was Sammy who was called to the mound to face the Marines. One hit is all the sea police could collect off his delivery in three and one-third innings, and that is some relief pitching.

CALIFORNIA News of the Week

First prize in a worldwide amateur radio operators' contest goes to Dr. Charles E. Stuart, Ventura. He made the record of two-way contacts with 230 stations in 50 foreign countries.

The city of Sacramento has attained a record that is something to crow about. For the last two months not one single auto fatality has occurred in that city, reveals Captain James Darwin, police traffic bureau. This splendid all-time record is believed to be the result of a stringent campaign conducted by authorities to reduce traffic toll.

Science, which has already girdled the globe with telegraph and airplane, will now do so with radio. A round-the-world radio station is to be constructed at Huntington Beach on the 83-acre tract formerly owned by the Pacific Gun Club. The $1,000,000 station will be built by the R. C. A.

The Sacramento lobby scandal in the State Legislature, started recently when Nathan J. Elliott, trucking lobbyist, was accused of trying to raise $33,000 to influence legislators, gained momentum in the lobby investigating committee of both Houses when Elliott quoted Mrs. Rhea Crawford Splivalo as ready to "tell what she knew about several Assemblymen."

The earth between Niland and the Salton Sea, Imperial Valley, has sunk three inches in the last three years, according to recent Coast and Geodetic Survey findings. Engineers will continue their survey to determine whether part of San Diego County has suffered a similar "relapse."

That California is still the melting pot for transients has been proved by FERA figures, which show that 5000 such persons cross this state's border every week. Some of 5000-a-week include families, a fact which would tend further to increase the unemployed population. This migration has been going on for the last 60 weeks, at least, statistics show. Sociologists are attempting to peer into the future to see what the result of the influx will be.

Dr. Robert Cornish, Berkeley dog killer-resuscitator, recently killed his sixth canine, bringing it back to life in four minutes. In his revival methods, which he is perfecting, he injected a new fluid into the animal's forepaw. The fluid contained no dog's blood as former fluids had and may restore normal brain and muscular functions to the animal.

An audit of all gambling house books has been ordered by the California Board of Equalization to determine their "take." This move was a preliminary to the board's sales taxing all gambling houses in the state 2 1/2 per cent of their gross incomes. Although gambling is illegal in California, gamblers are going to be made to pay their sales taxes.

California is leading the West in business recovery, according to W. E. Betts, assistant advertising director of a major motor car manufacturing company, making a business survey of the Western States. He said, "In addition to other definite signs which I note here of steadily increasing business volume, our own dealers are starting what promises to be their biggest year."

Communism has been hit a severe blow in California as a result of the verdict given at the famous Sacramento criminal syndicalism trial, at which eight of the 14 radicals on trial were convicted. Six were acquitted. Some observers believe that the result of this case means the end of the Communist Party in California. There is legislation awaiting action at Sacramento which would make this possible.

Rural Kern County has been warned against the increased fire hazard inevitable this summer because of the luxuriant growth of vegetation and grass. Three new ranger fire control stations have been completed, aiding in reduction of fire menace. A county-wide educational program is being instigated to stress prevention and to teach fire-fighting methods.

The Epic movement—End Poverty in California—returned to politics in Los Angeles during the city's recent primary election. While Epic forces succeeded in reelecting Councilman J. W. Baumgartner and in getting ten councilmanic candidates in the 15 districts placed in the run-off election to be held May 7, the movement suffered defeat in the judgeship race, placing only three of their men, reelected of the total ten. Each Epic candidate had the endorsement of Upton Sinclair.

Senator Hiram Johnson, California Republican, who has been confined to his bed with influenza, is reported recovered and back at his office.

Cost of unemployment, indigent and charity relief in Los Angeles County alone, is now more than $100,000,000 annually. These startling figures, based on an auditor's report, have been sent to State Senator Culbert L. Olson by John B. Elliott, Southland Democratic leader, in a letter that offered no comment as to the outcome of such spending.

It's a Season of Plaids and Checks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

GOES madly on the rage for checks and plaids. Where fashions are at their smartest these animated patternings are flourishing with all their might, both for day and evening wear.

The new plaids and checks are as apt to be "all wool and a yard wide" (more likely fifty-four inches) as they are apt to be of washable synthetics, linens or cottons. In fact among the swankiest weaves going you will find linens done in Paris, ray plaids which make up too swaggar for words—ever so effective for sports wear.

Then, too, topcoats of gorgeous plaids are going places where they never went before, for women are wearing them during the daytime hours about town and for travel as well as sports. Some have fur collars and some haven't, but they are that good looking with or without you will be envying the fortunates who possess them. The girl seated to the right in the picture is wearing a model which is styled with latest details, such as the hand-cut fringe of self material which trims the wide scarf ends and the wide turnover collar. The predominating colors in the plaid for this coat are brown and beige with a streak of orange in its makeup. The same plaid is striking in tones of reds or greens.

Her companion is wearing a check suit and if you are wanting to get into something decidedly stylish for spring here's your cue and no mistake about it. This one is black and white but if you happen to be in some other color mood, there is a check to satisfy, such as green with gray, navy with white, brown with tiger yellow. Then, too, there are tweed checks galore out on the field of action. They are smart, to be sure, but we must say there is a regular landslide in the direction of the simple little checks as pictured.

It is ever so good style to wear a tweed wool check skirt with a jacket of plain or the reverse. It is smart, too, to top a plaid or check skirt with a colorful suede jacket.

Plaid taffetas for daytime frocks, either synthetic or pure silk are making a grand success of it this season. A shirtwaist dress of plaid taffeta is in the height of fashion. Likewise a one-piece taffeta frock topped with a redingote of wool in navy or black makes an ideal spring costume.

Myriads of simple little morning and informal afternoon frocks choose plaid for their media. The model on the standing figure plays up bias-to-straight effectively. Novel touches such as buttons in alternate colors and little pockets set in on the bias add zest to this mode.

The other dress is interesting, too, in that it is made of a star print—little stars instead of the dotted theme and you can get this material with white stars on navy or red and other combinations. A deep pointed collar of white pique and large white buttons tune into the scheme of things most cleverly.

NAVY AND YELLOW

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It is good-looking, this girlish frock and hat to match, is it not? It is a film-folk fashion and you know it is smart and advance if it originates in Hollywood, as it has. Ruby Keeler wears it. Attention is especially called to it because of its navy and canary color scheme. Navy for the foundational color with either white, yellow or pink is the talk o' town this season. The smart set are carrying out the idea by wearing accessories made of natural toned chamois skin. The dress pictured is o' navy wool with accents of canary colored rough-textured crepe.

Turquoise Preferred

The turquoise has the preference among evening jewels, appearing effectively with white crepes and satins and especially with black velvet. Big turquoise buttons trim a black velvet dress cut away in front to show a fanpleated underskirt of black tulle.

"SKIMMER" NEWEST WHIM OF HATTERS

The "skimmer" is the newest whim of the hatters, with madness its chief distinguishing charm.

The skimmer is the 1935 version of the pancake sailor which has been with us, off and on, in recent months. Only now it is flatter and crazier and generally more exhilarating than ever.

You clap it on the side of your head at whatever angle best suits your current mood, batten it down with a band around the back or even a hatpin, and then go out and join in a sporting battle with the spring breezes.

There is one redeeming feature about the new skimmers. They have done away with the unsightly elastic bands that decorated last spring's version of this particular style of headgear, and have substituted bands of ribbon or felt or straw to match the hat.

New Silhouette Featured

by Alix and Schiaparelli

There is much discussion and some difference of opinion expressed concerning the new draped lines which had their most prominent exponents in Alix and Schiaparelli dresses. These influences, variously related to the Hindu, the Persian and the Iranian, are best known in the sari-draped togas familiar in Near East photographs.

The draping is in a soft, statuesque line, swirled round the body in a continuous movement from ankles to head. Several arrivals consider it a significant new silhouette trend, promising more for later season development. Others are inclined to disregard draping, considering it too extreme.

Spring Accessories Matter of Importance to Fashion

Accessories are going to be matters of prime fashion importance this spring for there are "ginger and snap" in the way they are put together. Here is the way one chic Parisian accents a black and white check suit: Yellow straw hat with black band, yellow blouse and yellow chamois gloves, blue cornflower in the buttonhole, black suede bag and gloves.

Lace With Tweeds

Bows of soft lace are being worn with tweed costumes.

Rays of Sun Important in Relation to Foods

Experiments recently carried out in Cleveland, Ohio, go to prove that animals derive their energy by the reradiation of the sun's rays on the food they eat. Dr. George Crile placed brain tissue in a flask and in total darkness a faint greenish glow was seen, which grew even brighter when the bottle was shaken. By the use of very delicate instruments it was proved that these radiations are produced in different wave lengths, and that the addition of certain drugs increased or decreased the luminescence at will. Doctor Crile, who has studied from a scientific standpoint the behavior of thousands of animals, says that the thyroid and adrenal glands differ in size, according to the needs of their owners. Thus, lions and tigers possess large glands, which give them the energy they need so often at a moment's notice, but these glands are much smaller in alligators and crocodiles, whose habits are mostly slow and sluggish. It has been established that the thyroid glands in the case of man are larger than the adrenal glands in animals because there is a much greater need for sustained energy over long periods.—London Tit-Bits.

Scientific Oddities

Recently two very important scientific discoveries have been made. One is that under the state of Montana lies a vast glacier composed of various gases, which have formed a natural refrigerating agent and frozen an underground lake. The other is that, suspended sixty miles above the North polar regions, is a canopy of ice-particles. French physicists who visited Greenland say that it is the cause of many violent thunderstorms. In contrast to these is the huge subterranean fire which rages beneath a mountain in the state of Colorado. It started in a coal bed years ago, and periodically, as the mountain is eaten away, it slips down till now it is 100 feet lower than it was ten years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

TOWN RUN BY WOMEN

Oak Park, Ga., claims the distinction of being the only town in the United States run entirely by women. A complete petticoat ticket was elected without opposition at the recent municipal election. The women named a ticket because the men officeholders had not done the things women thought necessary.

To keep clean and healthy take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate liver, bowels and stomach.—Adv.

Farm Lands Reclaimed

Much new agricultural land is in process of being reclaimed by the draining of lakes and marshes in La Camargue, the delta of the Rhone, which has an area of about 800 square miles, in France.

PROLIFIC SOW

Worcestershire, England, claims to have the world's greatest porcine mother in a sow which, it is claimed, produced 385 youngsters in 11 years, 65 being born in three litters in one year.

CARIBOO AGLOW
WITH OPTIMISMMuch Interest Evincd And Big Upswing Expected
In Lode And Placer

Says Sidney Norman in The Vancouver Sun: Mining in the Cariboo district seems to be due for a great upswing in the very near future, if present indications can be taken as a guide.

Much interest is evincd in the arrival of a party of engineers, headed by Lord Verulam of the British company interested in power development at Swamp River Falls.

This company, the president of which is the distinguished hydro-electric engineer, Lord Verulam, has guarantees for subscriptions of one million dollars worth of shares in the proposed power company. The party was expected to arrive in Vancouver, February 27.

The value to the Cariboo of this project, if carried through, is immeasurable; it will mean more intensified prospecting and development of mining properties, as far as the power can be profitably carried, and mines already operating will be able to cut down on running expenses, and apply the saving to dividends or expansions.

This will naturally mean employment of considerably more men.

Many Deals Pending

The marked interest shown by investors is seen by the number of mining deals pending, and also by the fact that several developing mines, which had to close down owing to lack of funds, are expecting to re-open shortly.

Cariboo Gold Quartz is planning expansion of the mill and the driving of a 5000 foot tunnel.

Island Mountain Mines has shipped five gold bricks since starting production last November; for some time an average of 70 to 80 tons of ore has been handled every 4 hours (as high as 112 tons). As the mill is only rated at 50 tons this can be said to be running at "more than full capacity."

Cariboo King, adjoining Cariboo Gold Quartz, has some distance to go before reaching its objective, but a small crew, under the supervision of W. McGowan, has been drilling ahead steadily for the last few months.

Coronada Mines will resume operations in a month or so, according to information from company officials.

Lode and Placer

On Richfield Cariboo, a crosscut will be driven by contractors, as rock formations indicate the possibility of an orebody running parallel with the main tunnel.

Properpine Gold Mines, in which old-timers here have more faith than in any other mine herabouts, is expected to open shortly; engineers representing British capital interested in the mine, are scheduled to arrive in Vancouver March 4.

Near Stanley prospects are also looking brighter.

Funds are being raised by Burns Mountain Mines for the purpose of driving 300 feet of tunnel.

Fred Wells of Cariboo Gold Quartz is now associated with the original "stakers" of Burns Mountain—Hansen, Fuller and Hawes, who own the controlling interest.

Eldorado Placers, of which Gol. W. W. Foster, chief of police of Vancouver, is president, is increasing its crew; a drift of 300 feet, 180 feet above "Lightning Creek," has been completed, 147 feet through hard rock. Both rims of an old channel, have been contacted.

Using an Empire drill, bedrock was located 10 feet below the drift and good gold values proved. This is the first time in the Cariboo that a core drill has been used in a drift, and it was only made possible by cutting the ordinary 5 foot bits in half. It is now intended to run an incline drift and use a siphoning system to keep the water out.

In Case Of Accident

While it is part of your duty to do everything humanly possible to prevent accidents, you are expected to do the following things if an accident does occur:

1. Give necessary aid to the best of your ability to the injured.

2. Get the following essential information in writing: names and addresses of all witnesses and injured persons, license number of vehicles and drivers involved, location and time of accident.

3. Report every accident promptly.

CONSOLIDATION OF ROADS PLAN
NOT APPROVEDPublic Does Not Look With Favor On State Adoption
Of County Arteries

Refusal of those who are urging centralized road control to bow to overwhelming public disapproval of the plan is being met by intensified activities on the part of opponents of the measure. That was evidenced in a statement today by the California State Automobile Association declaring that the fight will be carried on with increased momentum until the proposal is definitely in the discard.

"The last ditch attitude of those who would establish an arbitrary state control of all local roads tends to confirm the belief that this program is something other than an economy measure, which claim has already been fully discredited," the automobile association statement said. "Insistence upon adoption of the plan is being continued by the supporting forces, in the face of refusal by the Senate committee to report the measure out favorably after a full hearing and in the face of strong public opinion against the plan, as reflected by widespread editorial comment and action by scores of representative civic organizations."

Citing the experience of North Carolina, the statement continued:

"Against recommendations of the Bureau of Public Roads, the North Carolina Legislature in 1931 adopted a similar state road plan, and the gasoline tax was raised one cent per gallon. Two years later it was found necessary to stop all construction and reconstruction and the highway department became only a maintenance organization. Motorists paid $1,700,000 a year more under the centralized control plan, but they got maintenance of highways only, with no new construction. County taxpayers saved four cents per $100 on their tax rate, but they got no new roads. It is difficult to see where there was any advantage either to the motorist or county taxpayer."

SOME QUESTIONS
AND ANSWERSSome Little Known Matters
That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What is naturalization?

Answer: The legal process by which a person becomes a citizen of a country other than that of his birth. Though the details of form vary in all countries, a man who becomes naturalized always renounces all political relations and obligations to his native land, and takes an oath of allegiance to his adopted country.

Question: What is meant by "taking out first papers?"

Answer: Any alien, other than Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiian or a native of India, who is a white person, or of African birth or descent, if he desires to become naturalized, must file a declaration of his intention with the clerk of the United States District Court or any court which has jurisdiction over the residence of the applicant. This declaration must state name, age, residence, occupation, time and place of arrival in United States and applicant's intention to pledge sole allegiance to the United States, etc.

Question: What is an oratorio?

Answer: A musical composition of serious character, which requires soloists, chorus, and full orchestra for its performance, without the theatrical necessities of scenery, costumes and acting. The subjects are generally taken from the Bible, but may include dignified themes not strictly sacred.

Question: What is meant by final papers?

Answer: Not less than two years after filing the declaration and after not less than five years of continuous residence in the United States, and one year in a state, the applicant may petition for his "final papers," a cer-

DANGER DOGS
THE PEDESTRIAN

Five out of six pedestrians injured in automobile accidents are struck before they reach the middle of the street they are crossing.

Apparently, too many pedestrians fail to look to the left for approaching traffic before stepping into the roadway. In many cases cars parked close to the corner prevent oncoming cars from being seen until the pedestrian is well out from the curb. One-half of the pedestrians injured are hit by cars approaching from the left, and about to enter the intersection. Obviously, rigid enforcement of the regulations requiring cars to be parked a certain distance from the corner will help to reduce pedestrian accidents.

If pedestrians will look carefully for approaching vehicles, particularly when leaving the curb, many accidents will be avoided.

certificate of naturalization. The petitioner must state various facts about himself, the fact of his residence for five years and his general character to be verified by two citizen witnesses. These petitions are heard by the court in open session. Aliens who have been honorably discharged from the army or who have served four years in the navy, may become naturalized without filing the first declaration of intention.

Question: What are the rights of a naturalized citizen?

Answer: He has all the rights and privileges of a native-born citizen, except that in the United States he can never become President.

You'll have no moment of dark despair if an old friend comes in to see you unexpectedly and you're dressed in this nicely tailored house frock! For it's especially designed to flatter larger figures, and fashioned along lines as chic as a street or sports frock. The sleeves, cut in one with that pretty, double-pointed yoke, have a little inverted pleat to make them jaunty and oh! so comfortable to work in! And the neat panel at the front sweeps all the way from hem to yoke to give you a long, slim line. If you'd be practical as well as attractive, choose a gaily printed cotton fabric, gingham, percale, lawn or seersucker, as they launder so beautifully and wear so well.

Pattern 9226 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards 36 inch fabric.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $750,000. Fearful of McNamara, in his official capacity, Nance flees. Lanny finds her in her apartment, sound asleep. Several days later her partially restored memory leads her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her girlhood in France.

"We've been like two pups, chasing our tails," Angellotti complained when they met at their car. "The chief's up to his old tricks, babying a convict with the con, and that's the bird Doctor Burt is calling to treat."

"The girl's been there, just the same, Amadeo, my boy. There was a lip-stick on the bureau and that's something old lady McNamara don't use. And I found a roll of adhesive, the heel of a roll of bandage and a soiled sheet with some bloodstains on it in the dirty clothes basket in the bathroom."

Angellotti was convinced. "Where did she go?"

"She might have doubled back to that old nurse's house again, but I doubt that, because she knows that's risky."

"Well, let's give Miss Lanning's house a prowl, anyhow."

Flynn was one of those hearty fellows who will try anything twice, so they went immediately to Lanny's house. The lights in front were out when they arrived, so Flynn pussy-footed around to the rear of the cottage to see if any lights were lighted there. Finding none, he listened for possible voices. Hearing none, he cautiously lifted the lid off Lanny's garbage can and bent his flashlight on it. He was rewarded for his courage by finding a stained bandage with clipped adhesive tape clinging to it. This tell-tale evidence he carried around to Angellotti; they entered their car, drove a block and inspected the clue in the light of the dash lamp. Then they silently shook hands.

"Nothing is ever lost if you know where it is," Flynn rejoiced. "I'm going to get my missus a winter coat with my half of the reward. We'll bone the district attorney for a search warrant tomorrow, and tomorrow night when the old lady gets home, we'll make the pinch."

"Shall we pinch her as an accessory?"

"Amadeo, my boy, unless you're looking hard for something, it's a mistake to see too much or know too much. This Lanning woman is a friend of the chief's. As far as the public ever need know we picked the girl up on the street."

Angellotti nodded his acquiescence; they got the search warrant on the strength of that soiled bandage, and at nine o'clock that night arrived in their car. Flynn went to the back door and posted himself there; and Angellotti rang the front doorbell. A light was switched on in the hall presently, and Lanny, dressed for the street, opened the door six inches. Angellotti had his foot in it in a flash.

"Detective Sergeant Angellotti of the central station, Miss Lanning. I have here a search warrant, giving me legal right to search your house and secure the person of Nance Belden, an escaped convict from San Quentin penitentiary. Read it an' weep!"

"You take your big fat foot out of my door and stay outside until I've read this purported search warrant or I'll shoot your foot off," Lanny informed him coldly. Angellotti withdrew his foot promptly, Lanny closed the door, and he could see her faintly through the curtained glass, reading.

"Come in," she invited—and at that moment the electric light bulb tossed out the upper window by Nance exploded with a loud report. "What's that?" Angellotti cried, instantly alert. A still louder explosion reverberated in the back yard; then the voice of Flynn crying: "Hey, stop, or I'll shoot."

"Tried slippin' her out the back door, eh?" Angellotti exclaimed, and dashed through the house, with Lanny at his heels. As he went out the kitchen door, Lanny slammed and bolted it behind him, and then, even as Dan McNamara had predicted, nature took her course. Nance dropped the remainder of the bombs and came dashing down the stairs. "Good-by, Lanny, darling," she cried happily. "We'll meet again," Lanny switched off the hall light, and Nance was through the front door and gone.

Across the street two coupes stood at the curb, the motors of both turning over slowly.

Alternately the girl's finger was pointed at each car. "My—mother—told—me—to—take—this—one," she murmured, and when, through the aid of this childhood formula, she had made her decision, she leaped into the coupe of Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti and went rapidly away. Lanny, watching her from the darkened doorway, saw that she had taken the wrong car, but was afraid to cry out and warn her. So she did the next best thing. She locked her front door behind her, climbed into the other car and drove down town to a late motion picture show. She carried the search warrant with her and while enjoying the show tore it into little bits.

Of the weeping, the groaning, the burning sensations in the eyelids, the bewilderment, the groping, vomiting, cursing and despair of Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti nothing need be said. Suffice that Angellotti felt his way out of the gassed area and about two minutes after Lanny's departure, stationed himself on her front steps, while the valiant Flynn, dying a thousand deaths, stuck manfully at his post, leaning up against the kitchen door, enduring for duty's sake. Convinced they had Nance Belden cornered, they waited for the night wind to dissipate the gas. Angellotti ceased to weep about half an hour after escaping from the gassed area, but continued to gag for an hour. About ten-thirty he was able to see, so he rang Lanny's bell repeatedly, but received no answer. Then he noticed that their car was missing, so he summoned the martyred Flynn around front and told him the worst.

"Don't speak to me," Flynn commanded passionately. "I'm dead! Hunt up an all-night drug store an' phone for a taxi."

"This," Angellotti hissed, "is Dan McNamara's work. Where would they get the bombs if he didn't swipe 'em out of the police arsenal?"

"What's That?" Angellotti Cried, Instantly Alert.

Flynn commenced to sob as he considered the barren fruits of his enormous sacrifice.

"Amadeo, swear to me, by our common faith, that, come what will, blow high, blow low, come sickness or sorrow, happiness or health, you'll never lay off this job until we've landed that—that huzzy."

"Right! I swear," Angellotti's voice trembled with the sincerity of his purpose.

The respective wives of the worthy pair telephoned down to the chief of the detectives next morning and informed him that their husbands were confined to bed with influenza. It might not be amiss, also, to state that Lanny came home in a taxi about twelve-thirty, and finding the front door free of Angellotti, and the neighborhood ozone quite restored to normalcy, retired to her bed and passed almost at once into dreamless and untroubled sleep.

It was not a police car in which Nance had escaped, but the private vehicle of Detective Sergeant Flynn, and its loss troubled him until the car was found, abandoned, out in the Mission, about twenty-four hours later. A glance at the speedometer comforted Flynn. The car had been driven six miles. In company with Angellotti (both now happily recovered from their terrible experience) he drove in the same car from Lanny's house, via the most direct route, to the point where a patrolman had picked up the car; thence via the route followed by the patrolman when he came off duty and drove the car to the central station and reported it. The mileage was six and two-tenths miles!

"She's holed up within a block or two of where she left the car," Flynn decided.

"Not such a cold trail, after all," Angellotti exclaimed. "We'll just have to patrol the neighborhood in our off moments. I'm sure the girl doesn't know she swiped your car, and that she gave us a clue to follow her."

"If crooks didn't make mistakes and give us the breaks, my boy, you and I wouldn't be where we are," Flynn reminded him. "I think it might be a good idea to interview the druggist in the neighborhood and see if she's been in to buy a new lipstick."

A round of the neighboring drug stores, however, proved barren of a new lead, and as they had other matters claiming their attention, they were forced to abandon the search that day.

Dan McNamara was much too intelligent to make inquiries of the assistant district attorney who had issued the search warrant, but when informed that Flynn and Angellotti were down with flu he called up Lanny at Stephen's office, and received a meticulous report. "You say the girl fled in the car my dicks arrived in?" he queried. "That's terrible. A description of the car must have been broadcast to all outlying police and the surrounding country stations immediately by Flynn and Angellotti, and Nance will be picked up somewhere down state."

"We've done our damndest," Lanny replied cheerfully. "Angels can do no more. I borrowed the car you left out front. It's in a garage. I'll send you the claim check."

For a week, the chief waited for news of Nance Belden, but no news came through beyond some gossip around the central station that the car had been driven but three miles and then abandoned—for which evidence that the Almighty was still on his side the worthy fellow was grateful.

So Nance was still in the city! McNamara's mind worked so automatically he did not even have to tell himself that, undoubtedly, she had taken sanctuary within a short distance of the spot where she had abandoned Flynn's car, nor did he have to remind himself that Flynn and Angellotti would come to the same conclusion. He had no difficulty in ascertaining the spot where the car had been recovered.

"Folsom street and Sixteenth, eh?" he reflected. "Residential—flat buildings and cheap apartment houses, cheap rooming houses and working-men's hotels. No, she wouldn't go to one of those. Not what she is—she has class—and she has two hundred dollars in her possession. She's holed up with a friend. What friend? Why, Ella Cates, of course."

He had already secured Ella Cates' address from the banker in San Jose. However, he realized it would not be wise to call upon her and run the risk of having Flynn or Angellotti run across him in the neighborhood or see him entering Ella Cates' house. The obvious thing, therefore, was to cast about for a job in another part of the city and see that both detectives were assigned to it. If he sent them out of the city for a day or two they might suspect his purpose and have some other dick friend of theirs shadow him during their absence.

While he was considering where he could dispose of them, the president of the Security Trust company in San Jose rang up.

"Miss Penelope Gatlin has just been in the bank, Chief," he told McNamara. "She has purchased a letter of credit for ten thousand dollars and has withdrawn in cash the remainder of the funds on deposit to the credit of her checking account, amounting to eleven hundred dollars."

"Is she in the bank now?"

"Yes."

"Have one of your clerks follow her. Give him some expense money—I'll be responsible for its repayment. And when you get his report please telephone me."

At three-thirty the banker telephoned again. "She purchased a ticket to San Francisco on one of the buses leaving here at three-fifteen. She spent two hours shopping."

The buses, McNamara knew, entered the city via Mission street, the bus depot was at Fifth and Mission streets. Ella Cates lived on Howard street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth. Howard street runs between Mission and Folsom—and Flynn's car had been found abandoned at Sixteenth and Folsom. Nance was smart. She had left the car a block from Ella Cates' home and walked there. McNamara reasoned the incoming bus would drop the girl off at Sixteenth and Mission streets—a regular stop—and she would then make her way to the Cates woman's house.

He glanced at his watch. He had an hour and a half to intercept her; for that hour and a half he must have Flynn and Angellotti in another section of the city. To his annoyance he discovered they were out on a detail, so he decided he would have to risk it, called a taxi and drove to Ella Cates' address. He discovered it to be a cheap wooden apartment house, but the directory in the vestibule gave him no information as to which apartment Ella Cates lived in, so he rang the landlady's bell and the door opened to admit him. To his inquiry regarding Mrs. Cates, he was informed that she had moved to parts unknown a week before, nor could his informant give him any clue to aid him in discovering her.

As he came out of the apartment house he glanced warily around and was amused to observe Detective Angellotti leaning against a cigar stand across the street. He was certain the detective had recognized him, for Angellotti immediately turned his back. The chief walked up to Mission street, boarded a street car and was at the bus terminus two minutes before the bus on which Nance had left San Jose rolled in. But Nance was not among the passengers that alighted.

Ancient Festival Goes On

At Aix en Provence, France, was instituted the first Roman garrison in Gaul. The church of Monte Sainte Victoire perpetuates a victory of Marius. Every April 24 there is a procession from Bauvenargues to the mountain to light a bonfire. This, the festival of Marius, is one of the oldest still existing.

BEAUTY REGIME
MUST BE RIGID
TO GET RESULTS

Failure to practice them regularly is one of the reasons a good many women seem never to get the most good out of their beauty routines. If you do your exercises once a week instead of every day you can't expect to see a rapid improvement in your figure.

Drinking eight glasses of water only one day out of the month isn't going to keep your complexion clear and smooth, and dieting three days a week and then stuffing yourself with sweets and starches the other four won't make you lose weight. If you really are serious about keeping your skin, hair and figure lovely through the years you simply must stick by whatever rules you have made.

The same general idea applies to use of cosmetic preparations, too. One mask won't clear up a muddy complexion, but if you use a mask on a certain day each week for six months you will see an improvement.

If you are trying to get rid of fine lines around your eyes apply eye cream, muscle oil, tissue builder or whatever, each and every night before you go to bed. One application of anything just won't correct defects that have accumulated over a period of years.

You have to learn to pick the right aids, use them properly and, above all, consistently.

You should allow at least fifteen minutes each morning for application of make-up; about half an hour at night before you go to bed for brushing, cleansing and creaming; two hours one day a week for a visit to a beauty shop or for thorough skin and hair reconditioning treatments at home. The total is only seven and one-quarter hours per week—certainly not too much time to devote to your personal appearance.—Alice Hart, in the New York World-Telegram.

Chemists Seek Means of

Slowing Down Oxidation

Oxygen which gives us life, is also man's greatest industrial enemy, notes a writer in the Montreal Herald. The air we breathe contains one-fifth oxygen, and this gas is a highly corrosive substance. When a house burns down it is simply combining with the oxygen in the air. When soap turns brown on a chemist's shelf it is merely another instance of the corrosive quality of oxygen. But it is the motor industry that suffers most from the ravages of oxidation. Its two chief organic essentials, rubber and petrol, are especially susceptible. Thousands of pounds worth of these materials have been utterly wasted owing to the action of air—and now the scientists have struck back. They have been experimenting with the development of substances known as anti-oxidants. These compounds when mixed with any product, slow down oxidation to such an extent that its usefulness and life are increased tenfold.

Fossil Find

Predictions of noted scientists that no fossils would ever be found in Death Valley are refuted by the discovery there of practically all of the skull of a Titanotheres, belonging presumably to the eocene or oligocene period. The momentous discovery was made by members of the staff of Death Valley National monument. A short time later a party of scientists from the California Institute of Technology unearthed another skull of the same type of mammal. Never before has the skull of a Titanotheres been found west of the Rockies, and but once previously have any fossils of this family of mammals been discovered in that region.

Manifold Heating

On most of the new cars the manifold heater is automatically controlled. On older models, however, this is not the case and many owners do not operate the heater manually as it should be.

The tendency is to err on the side of leaving it "on" too long.

A guide to the time for turning it is offered in the functioning of the choke. Usually the heater can be turned off when the engine performs normally with the choke all the way "in."

For Surer Starting

There is assurance of much easier starting in the new model automobiles, what with the larger generators and batteries, and other improvements in the electrical system. Easier starting, experience should have taught every car owner, is definitely a matter of higher cranking speeds.

Illustrative of the improvement in this respect, cranking speeds of from 45 to 50 r.p.m. in zero weather are provided in the 1935 cars.

FOUR HELPERS AT WHITE HOUSE ARE IMPORTANT

Wife Of President Depends Greatly On These Loyal And Efficient Women

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is one of the busiest of women, but were it not for four royal and efficient helpers at the White House it might be difficult for her to maintain her crowded schedules.

How necessary is Mrs. Henry D. Nesbitt, the housekeeper, whom the Roosevelts brought with them from Hyde Park. She is the first person, Mrs. Roosevelt confers with in the morning. It is this helper's task to plan the housework, buy all the supplies, plan the meals, keep accounts and watch over the large supply of china, silver and glassware that belongs to the White House.

Mrs. James P. Helm is her social secretary, who attends each day to the social correspondence and plans for entertainments to be given during the official season from November to June. She sees to it that the president's wife has a list of these functions on her desk kept up to date and reminds her again at the last moment who are to be her nearest neighbors at entertainments. She also brings to her attention anything which she thinks would add to the pleasure and comfort of her guests.

Last year Mrs. Roosevelt's mail totaled 105,000 letters. The responsibility of handling all this rests with Mrs. Malvina T. Schneider. The mail is generally divided into several groups for disposal as follows: (1) personal mail from members of the family and friends, taken out first; (2) mail containing requests for charity bazaars, answered with autographed picture of the White House; (3) requests for autographs, responded to with the President's wife's signature on a small card marked "White House;" (4) letters asking her to speak, give interviews, be a patroness or send messages to gatherings; (5) persons in distress writing letters asking for aid or advice. Some of these are answered in person by Mrs. Roosevelt; most of them, however, are taken care of efficiently by her secretary.

Mrs. Roosevelt remembers to commend her Negro maid, who keeps her mistress's clothes in order, and when necessary can pack them on ten minutes notice.

Weak Battery

When a car's battery is weak the ammeter should be watched and the car driven at the rate of speed where the highest charging rate is registered.

Driving at high speed or a too low speed causes the charging rate to be reduced. Using the lights unnecessarily should also be avoided when the battery is weak.

Investigate Clicking

A clicking noise in the rear end of a car should be investigated without delay.

The clicking may be found due to any one of the following causes: Looseness between axle shaft and wheel; breakage of balls or rollers in bearings; and in some cases a broken bearing cage.

VETERAN FIREMEN HOLD SESSION

Veteran Firemen of Daly City held their meeting last Friday evening at their meeting hall. Comrade Schenk presided.

There were two new members taken in. Mr. M. Goldberg and Mr. C. Kenyon were initiated and are now comrades of the Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City.

The veteran firemen also contributed to the program of the Daly City Fire Department's gigantic entertainment for the Widows and Orphans Fund, which is to be held at the Jefferson Union High School on Saturday evening, April 27.

If you want any tickets for this great entertainment, ask any fireman you meet and he will gladly sell you as many as you may want to purchase. This is for a good cause, so try and be there.

After the association meeting a buffet supper was served by the good chef, J. Hesslein.
